

Jean Tree is a flourishing creative artist.

New York City became a platform for her to grow as an artist in many genres such as dance, acting, modeling, and painting. Jean Tree developed her style of dance after being exposed to the underground house scene. Her background in ballet, contemporary, hip hop and capoeira has given her a unique quality in her movement; combining smooth, fluid steps with dynamic floor work. Her love for dance pushes her to continually explore different ways to convey messages and meaning through movement vocabulary. Her recent training with Jeet Kun Do, weaponry and parkour has further advanced her skill and style. Experimental movement has become a genre for her style of dance.

As Jean became more involved with on-camera work, she has succeeded in working in numerous commercials and commercial print ads. She has recently co-starred in a web series being shown internationally, featured in various shows such as Law & Order:SVU and Daredevil on Netflix. She aspires to continue her work in film and television.

Jean Tree also works creatively as a painter. Her artwork is inspired by art therapy and human figure/emotion. She loves to involve all aspects of her artistry when creating work. Her influences of capoeira, dance and NYC culture can be seen throughout her work.
